Great Trails

Five flowing singletrack trails for downhill daredevils.

From true-heart passages to high alpine sections, the following five trails all have one thing in common: flow. The Arzl Alm Trail, Blindsee Trail, Flachau Trail, Leiterberg Trail and Plamort Trail are a fine cross-section of 85 singletrack trails in Tirol which draw riders from near and far to the region for spectacular two-wheeled adventures.

A good at singletrack requires then the following three aspects: flow, technique and - above all - fearlessness. The blindsee Trail is a prime example of the last point. It is a true all-rounder for riders who want to embrace every feature with a good measure of fearlessness.

The most important criteria for the selection of singletrack trails are based on the following points:

- Flow
The trail should be enjoyable and not too technical.
- Technique
Riders should be able to ride the trail with their preferred technique.
- Fun factor
A good singletrack trail should present riders with a challenge, at the same time it should not be too demanding. It should be possible for riders to continue enjoying the ride without feeling too much pressure to perform.

THE MOST IMPORTANT CRITERIA FOR A TRAIL

A varied and fun trail with some short uphill sections and a fantastic vantage point at the end. It’s an ideal trail for beginners who want to start with downhill.
